JOURNAL

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

Wednesday - 11 January 1967

25X1 1. [redacted] Talked to Garner J. Cline, Counsel, House Subcommittee on Immigration and Nationality, about the Rodino bill. Cline said that Representative Peter Rodino (D., N.J.) plans to introduce the bill within the next few days. I also asked Cline for suggestions as to whom we should ask t[redacted] 25X1
25X1 [redacted] which died in the last session. Cline said he was sure Representative Rodino would be happy to do this for us.

25X1 2. [redacted] Spoke to Ben Zelenko, Counsel, Subcommittee 4, House Committee on Judiciary, concerning the bill prohibiting the use of the Agency name or initials. Zelenko said he was at a loss to provide any sound advice but did feel the bill does not have too great a chance as the same members who objected during the last session are still on the Committee. He saw no harm in reintroducing the bill but could not offer any encouragement.

25X1 3. [redacted] In the absence of J. Sourwine, Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security, I spoke to Frank Schroeder, Chief Investigator, and informed him that the three Cubans in whom Sourwine is interested are available when he wants them. I asked that we be provided sufficient lead time before they are called to insure that no problems arise. Schroeder said he would pass this on to Sourwine.

25X1 4. [redacted] Called on freshman Congressman Wiley Mayne (R., Iowa), who was a law school classmate and fellow agent in the FBI. Mayne was extremely busy getting settled into office but I did have time to give him a brief background on the Agency and to note our availability should he have any problems involving the Agency.
